

Memories: Ribbons raising funds for Alzheimer’s charity

KERRI-ANN WARREN of the Alzheimer Society of Ireland is among an army of staff and volunteers selling the society’s blue ribbons across the country yesterday.

She was on hand at the Northside Shopping Centre in North Dublin to urge locals to support the cause.

The ‘Memory Ribbons’, costing €3 each, went on sale as part of the charity’s annual Flag Day fundraising event to raise vital funds for the charity’s services.

It provides supports and services for the 55,000 people in Ireland living with dementia.

Members of the public who wish to support the charity can still buy the ribbons from the charity’s online shop or make a donation by logging on to www.alzheimer.ie.

Photo: Sam Boal

