Active Engagement

2026

Dear Friends,

Hello and welcome to March!

As we step into a new season, this month's activity pack celebrates storytelling, tradition, and gentle challenges to keep minds and spirits engaged. March is a time of renewal and reflection, and we hope these activities bring both enjoyment and comfort.

To keep minds active, we've included a wordsearch and Sudoku, perfect for quiet concentration or friendly problem-solving together. These puzzles are a lovely way to pass the time while keeping thinking skills sharp.

For those who enjoy language and creativity, we have our selection of poems and songs. These offer opportunities for reflection, reminiscence, and discussion, whether reading quietly or sharing aloud as a group.

We also have a story this month, the beautiful Irish legend of Tír Ná Nóg, a timeless tale of youth, love, and adventure. This story invites imagination and conversation, and may spark memories of folklore and storytelling from long ago.

In the kitchen, we're turning to comfort and tradition with a hearty lamb stew. Warm, nourishing, and full of flavour, it's a classic dish that's perfect for sharing and enjoying together as the days are still a little cool.

Whether you're puzzling, reading, listening, cooking, or reminiscing, we hope this March pack brings moments of calm, connection, and enjoyment. Wishing you a peaceful, uplifting, and cosy March. 🌱

Óisín of Tír na nÓg

Long ago in Ireland, there lived a brave warrior named Oisín. He was the son of the famous Finn MacCool, leader of a group of protectors called the Fianna. Oisín loved exploring the green hills of Ireland with his friends.

One day, a beautiful white horse appeared. On its back sat a young woman with shining golden hair and a soft blue dress. Her name was Niamh, and she came from a magical place called Tír na nÓg, the Land of Eternal Youth, where no one grows old and no one feels sad.

Niamh told Oisín she had heard of his bravery. She asked him to come with her to Tír na nÓg. Oisín loved Niamh instantly, but he was sad to leave his father. Still, he promised Finn that he would return.

Oisín rode with Niamh across the sea to the magical land. Life there was happy and peaceful, and Oisín and Niamh enjoyed many wonderful days. But after a long time, Oisín began to miss Ireland and his family.

He asked Niamh if he could visit home. She agreed, but warned him, “You may ride my white horse, but do not touch the ground. If you do, you can never return.”

Oisín rode back to Ireland, but everything had changed. Many years had passed, far more than he realised. His friends and family were gone, and the Fianna no longer roamed the hills.

Oisín met some men struggling to move a heavy stone. He leaned down from the horse to help, but he slipped and fell to the ground. The moment his feet touched the earth, he became an old man, aged by the hundreds of years that had passed.

Before he died, Oisín told the people of Ireland stories of Finn MacCool, the Fianna, and the beautiful land of Tír na nÓg. Even today, these stories are still told and remembered, thanks to the kind man who listened to Óisín's tale.

I taste a liquor never brewed

by Emily Dickinson

I taste a liquor never brewed, From tankards scooped in pearl; Not all the vats upon the Rhine Yield such an alcohol!

Inebriate of air am I, And debauchee of dew, Reeling, through endless summer days, From inns of molten blue.

When the landlord turn the drunken bee Out of the foxglove's door, When butterflies renounce their drams, I shall but drink the more!

Till seraphs swing their snowy hats, And saints to windows run, To see the little tippler Leaning against the sun!

The Net

by Julie O'Callaghan

*I am the Lost Classmate being hunted down the superhighways and byways of infinite cyber-space.
How long can I evade the class committee searching for my lost self?*

I watch the list of Found Classmates grow by the month Corralled into a hotel ballroom festooned with 70s paraphernalia, bombarded with atmospheric hit tunes, the Captured Classmates from Sullivan High School will celebrate thirty years of freedom from each other.

*I peek at the message board:
my locker partner, out in California, looks forward to being reunited with her old school chums.*

*Wearing a disguise, I calculate the number of months left for me to do what I do best, what I've always done:
slip through the net.*

The Lost Land

By Eavan Boland

I have two daughters.

They are all I ever wanted from the earth.

Or almost all.

I also wanted one piece of ground:

One city trapped by hills. One urban river.
An island in its element.

So I could say mine. My own.
And mean it.

Now they are grown up and far away and memory itself has become an emigrant, wandering in a place where love dissembles itself as landscape:

Where the hills are the colours of a child's eyes, where my children are distances, horizons:

At night,
on the edge of sleep,

I can see the shore of Dublin Bay.
Its rocky sweep and its granite pier.

Is this, I say how they must have seen it, backing out on the mailboat at twilight, shadows falling on everything they had to leave?

And would love forever?
And then

I imagine myself at the landward rail of that boat searching for the last sight of a hand.

I see myself on the underworld side of that water, the darkness coming in fast, saying all the names I know for a lost land:

Ireland. Absence. Daughter.

Galway Girl

Mundy

I took a stroll down the old long walk on a day-i-ay-i-ay
I met a little girl and we stopped to talk on a grand soft day-i-ay-i-ay Well I ask you, friend, what's a fella to do Because her hair was black and her eyes were blue
And I knew right then - I'd be takin' a whirl
'Round the Salthill Prom with a Galway girl
We were halfway there when the rain came down on the day-i-ay-i-ay
She asked me up to her flat downtown
On a grand soft day-i-ay-i-ay
And I ask you friend, what's a fella to do Ah - because her hair was black and her eyes were blue
So I took her hand - and I gave it a twirl Then I lost my heart to a Galway girl Oi!
Well when I woke up I was all alone...
With a broken heart and a ticket home...
And I ask you friend, what would you do?
Well if her hair was black and her eyes were blue
And I've been all around, I've been all over this world Boys - I've never seen nothin' like a Galway girl

Dirty Old Town

The Pogues

I met my love by the gas works wall
Dreamed a dream by the old canal
I kissed my girl by the factory wall
Dirty old town, dirty old town

Clouds are drifting across the moon Cats are prowling on their beat Spring's a girl from the streets at night
Dirty old town, dirty old town

I heard a siren from the docks Saw a train set the night on fire
I smelled the spring on the smoky wind
Dirty old town, dirty old town

I'm gonna make me a big sharp axe Shining steel tempered in the fire I'll chop you down like an old dead tree
Dirty old town, dirty old town

I met my love by the gas works wall
Dreamed a dream by the old canal
I kissed my girl by the factory wall
Dirty old town, dirty old town
Dirty old town, dirty old town

The Black Velvet Band

The Irish Rovers

Her eyes they shone like the diamonds
You'd think she was queen of the land
And her hair hung over her shoulders
Tied up with a black velvet band

In a neat little town they call Belfast Apprentice to trade I was bound And many an hour sweet happiness
I spent in that neat little town
'Til bad misfortune came o'er me
And caused me to stray from the land Far away from me friends and relations
They follow the black velvet band

Her eyes they shone like the diamonds
You'd think she was queen of the land
And her hair hung over her shoulders
Tied up with a black velvet band

Well I went out strolling one evening Not meaning to go very far
When I met with a fickle dame
She was sellin' her trade in the bar
When a watch she took from a customer
And slipped it right into my hand
Then the law came and put me in prison Bad luck to her black velvet band

Her eyes they shone like the diamonds
You'd think she was queen of the land
And her hair hung over her shoulders
Tied up with a black velvet band

Next morning before judge and jury For trial I had to appear Then the judge, he says me, "young fellow
The case against you is quite clear"
And seven long years is your sentence You're goin' to Van Diemen's land Far away from your friends and relations Did follow the black velvet band

Her eyes they shone like the diamonds
You'd think she was queen of the land
And her hair hung over her shoulders
Tied up with a black velvet band
